

YEMEN KIDS AND WAR

52' & 32'

It is an exceptional documentary, filmed in a country no camera can penetrate – a world exclusive.

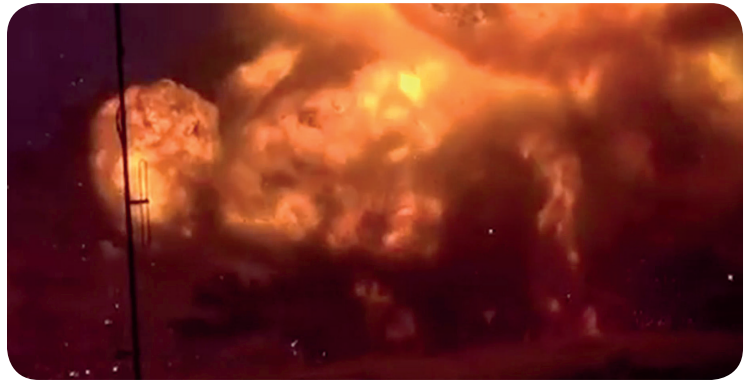

In a context in which the biggest international networks are unable to present images of this forgotten war, the Yemeni director Khadija Al Salami has entrusted her camera to 3 children who become war correspondents for this documentary in Yemen.

Ahmed is 11, Rima is 8 and Youssef is 9. It is them who will recount the daily life of the Yemeni people under Saudi airstrikes.

They meet other kids, collecting the testimonies of wounded children in hospital and those who lost their parents in the airstrikes.

With the innocence of children, they also interview adults – a painter, a rapper, a model who has become 'Miss War' on social media – and ask them to send a message to those who they believe are the only ones who can stop the war – the European Union.

Constructed like a story tale, with no images of violence, this deeply moving documentary shows the cruel reality of war through the eyes of children, and the incredible hope that they place in Europe to put an end to the conflict.
